Acknowledgements

The second DHDR is an outcome of the strong commitment of the Government of National Capital Territory of Delhi (GNCTD) to enhance the human development scenario of the State. Following the path of the first report, this report is also a product of extensive engagements with government officials, academicians, civil society organisations, and last but not the least, more than 8000 people of Delhi from all the districts and from all sections of society who participated in the Public Perceptions Survey.

The genesis of this report would not have been possible without the dynamic initiative and support of the GNCTD. The necessary financial support was provided by Government of Delhi and Planning Commission – UNDP partnership ‘Human Development: Bridging Inequalities’ (HDBI). The project was executed at the Institute for Human Development (IHD), New Delhi, which accomplished this task by engaging various stakeholders and researchers.

Our foremost acknowledgement for this report is to the Chief Minister of GNCTD, Smt. Sheila Dikshit whose commitment to see it in the published form has throughout motivated the team to achieve this challenging goal within a very short span of time. Her keen interest, valuable suggestions, participation in the stakeholder’s consultation meeting and overall her motive to periodically assess the human development situation in the State has brought out this publication.

We are also grateful to the Minister of Health and Family Welfare, GNCTD, Dr. A.K. Walia, who personally attended the consultation meeting on health and gave valuable suggestions.

We would like to acknowledge the valuable role played by all the members of the Steering Committee, which was especially constituted for accomplishing this task under the Chairmanship of the Chief Secretary, GNCTD, Mr. D.M. Spolia. We also offer special thanks to Dr. A.K. Shiva Kumar, Member, National Advisory Committee, Government of India, and a Member of the Steering Committee for his valuable advice. This Report would not have been possible without the relentless support provided by Dr. B.K. Sharma, Member Secretary, Steering Committee for the DHDR, 2013, who was present at every stage from its conception to its publication.

The Principal Secretary, Finance and Power, Mr. Shakti Sinha, Principal Secretary, Planning, Mr. A.J. Kurien, and Joint Director deserve our special acknowledgement as they led the work from the GNCTD. They facilitated in providing all the necessary inputs from the GNCTD, attended all the consultation meetings and gave their valuable feedback. They also ensured the smooth administrative support required for the publication of this Report.

We would like to acknowledge the contribution made by experts from different universities and institutions; officials from GNCTD, GOI and the National Capital Region Planning Board (NCRPB); and representatives from the various voluntary organisations that went through the draft chapter, attended the consultation meetings and gave important suggestions and critical comments which helped in enriching the report.
